We presented Terri with the challenge of developing a training program for our commercial space flight company. Terri accepted the task and assimilated herself into the role with ease, tirelessly researching the aerodynamics of space travel and what civilian passengers would want to know before flying into sub-orbital space. The logistics of this type of training are extensive, especially since this type of program has never before been organized.

Terri's understanding of the subject matter is astounding. This knowledge, combined with her outgoing personality, has helped develop a committed relationship with a federal organization very eager to assist our company in providing a state of the art Astronaut Training program.

Terri has demonstrated the ability to mold this training program to meet each participant's needs. She has surpassed any and all our expectations and proven to be an invaluable asset to our team.
